

Open Colleges Australia Career Personality Results

<https://www.opencolleges.edu.au/careers/career-quiz>

Introduction

Logisticians love structure and tradition, and have a high regard for facts. Give them firm goals, a clear organisational hierarchy and responsibility for a task and they will work hard to get the job done. Logisticians are highly organised, practical and no-nonsense, and value their integrity and logic. Logisticians are methodical, productive and punctual, and they expect the same from their colleagues. Truth is important to Logisticians, and sometimes they can come across as blunt or unfeeling, when they think they are just being honest. Famous Logisticians include Warren Buffett and Queen Elizabeth II.

Strengths

Honest: Logistician's prize personal integrity and being truthful.

Responsible: You can trust a Logistician to do exactly what they have promised to do, even if it is at a personal cost to themselves.

Practical: Logisticians make clear decisions based on facts and reason. They prefer work that has practical rather than theoretical outcomes.

Create order: Logisticians make sure to communicate goals, rules and guidelines clearly so that everyone involved knows how to achieve their common goals. They have low tolerance for missed deadlines or setbacks that could have been prevented.

Jack-of-all-trades: Logisticians are able to retain a lot of knowledge around facts and statistics, and can apply this information in a variety of situations.

Weaknesses

Judgemental: Logisticians tend not to respect those who disagree or choose to ignore the facts.

Insensitive: Because honesty is so important to a Logistician, they are unlikely to take others' feelings into account when the truth needs to be told.

Stubborn: There's no arguing with the facts, and Logisticians will resist new ideas that aren't factually supported.

Stick to the rules: Logisticians love a clear structure and are most uncomfortable in situations that are less clearly defined, or where rules can be bent.

Take the blame: Logisticians hold themselves to such high standards that if an outcome is less than perfect, they will hold themselves accountable and berate themselves for things they should have done differently.

What Logisticians Look for In a Career

Stability: Logisticians dislike change and prefer roles that have proven longevity, often in more traditional organisations or institutions.

Clear hierarchy: Logisticians need to know who is responsible for what and who is in charge. A clear organisational hierarchy is important to them.

Structure: Logisticians value work that responds to logic and facts and has clearly defined rules.

Responsibility: Logisticians love being given responsibility; it's proof that they are trusted and are the best person for the job.

Careers Suggestions

Information Technology

A job in Information Technology is continuously evolving as businesses look to keep themselves at the top of their game. A role in this industry will help you develop your management and technology skills and enable you to make a real difference to large and small companies.

Accounting and Finance

A job in Accounting & Finance is viewed as skilled, valued and varied, which has scope for individuals to develop both personally and professionally along many trajectories. Join this career path and you could be contributing to the success of large and small companies.

Administration

A job in Administration is seen by many professionals as a great entry vocation into the world of business, which has scope for individuals to develop both personally and professionally. Join this career path and aspire to make a real difference to the success of a variety of big and small companies.

Management

A job in Management will see you making the big decisions as part of a business. This career will help you develop both your business and management skills making you a true leader of people. Join this career path and aspire to make a real difference to the success of a variety of big and small companies.

Business

A job in Business is a rewarding and challenging career path with limitless scope. Business is often viewed as a universal language, and as such, has the capacity to take you almost anywhere in the world. Join this career path and aspire to make a real difference to the success of a variety of big and small companies.

Education and Childcare

Working in Education & Childcare is a great way to have fun while you build your career. Working with children is a great way to enhance your career and grow into the many opportunities that will emerge over the next few years in Australia, as conditions, training and wages continue to improve.